01 The Mark

Three parts, nothing else: an obsidian tile, the initials γκ set in serif (Georgios Katsikis, in Greek lowercase), and a terracotta period. The period is the signature — it is the full stop from the wordmark "Georgios Katsikis." and it is always terracotta.

Construction

- Tile: 100 × 100, corner radius 20 — the radius is the construction unit.
- Tile fill `#0D0D0D` (obsidian), glyphs `#E3DAC9` (bone).
- Period: circle r 7 at the glyph baseline, always `#C97064`.
- Clearspace: one corner radius (20%) on all sides.

Scale

Grounds

- Minimum size 16 px — it ships as the favicon, so it is favicon-proven.

Never

- Recolor the period — it is the identity.
- Set the glyphs in a sans-serif.
- Stretch or rotate the tile.
- Place the tile on terracotta — the period vanishes into it (see right).

✓ On brand dark — add a stone-700 hairline so the tile doesn't dissolve, or use the bare wordmark.

✓ On light — the tile carries its own ground; use as-is on white, paper, invoices.

✕ On terracotta — the period disappears into the ground. Don't.

Portability note. The shipped `favicon.svg` draws γκ with a live `<text>` node set in Georgia, so the file depends on the viewer's installed fonts (fine in browsers, risky in print pipelines and on Linux). Before any print or large-format use, convert the glyphs to outlines — and consider redrawing them in Fraunces so the mark matches the display face the rest of the brand uses.

02 Color

Obsidian is the ground and bone is the voice: titles, button labels and the glass highlights that used to be white. The grays between them are Tailwind's stone scale, warm and brown-biased; never substitute slate, zinc, or pure gray for them. Terracotta is the only voice of action and emphasis; dusk is its quiet, cool counterpoint.

Obsidian
#0D0D0D · the ground, page and section bands

Obsidian Deep
#060606 · alternating bands, modal backdrops

Obsidian Raised
#1A1A1A · cards, card borders, scrollbar track

Bone
#E3DAC9 · headings, titles, button labels, glass highlights; nothing on the site is white

Terracotta Light
#D98A6C · hover, links on dark

Terracotta
#C97064 · primary actions, the period

Terracotta Dark
#A85847 · pressed, depth

Dusk Light
#9DB4C7 · rare highlights

Dusk
#7A8FA6 · ambient orbs, timeline alt

The stone scale

Proportions. Obsidian carries the ground and bone the voice; stone does the quiet work in between, as headings, body, muted text and lines. Stone 800 to 950 are retired as surfaces since the obsidian steps replaced them, and stone 100 and 200 are retired as text since bone replaced every white (November 2026).

The obsidian ground is not flat: it carries a glass shine in bone light, a crisp diagonal reflection with a thin double, a window highlight along the top, faint conchoidal rings from one corner and depth at the edges, painted on the obsidian only and never on bone or terracotta. The 1024 px logo export shows it; `src/index.css` (`body::before`) and `scripts/obsidian-glass.py` hold the recipe. Terracotta appears only where something matters — a primary button, the period, a heading's underline bar. If everything is terracotta, nothing is. Dusk never carries text or actions; it lives in ambient backgrounds and alternating accents.

03 Typography

Two faces, strict roles. Fraunces (a warm, old-style display serif) speaks — headings, the wordmark, and italic "voice" moments. Inter works — body copy, UI, labels, everything else. Data and hex values go in the system mono stack.

Custom software for non-profits & healthcare

"Engineer with a social worker's heart. I build custom software for non-profits and healthcare organizations—tools shaped by years of working with the people on the other end."

INTER · BODY & INTERFACE

I'm a licensed social worker (LMSW) and software engineer, with training as a meditation teacher. This combination shapes how I approach both people and software—with empathy, user-centered thinking, and a focus on creating tools that genuinely help people.

UPPERCASE LABEL · 0.08EM TRACKING

Regular	Medium	Bold
400 · body	500 · buttons, nav, pills	700 · stats, card titles

- Headings pair Fraunces 600–700 with a terracotta underline bar (4 px tall, 80 px wide, fully rounded).
- Italic Fraunces is reserved for first-person voice moments — taglines, pull-quotes. Never for emphasis inside body text.
- Inter stays between 400 and 700; nothing lighter, nothing heavier.

Warm, plain, first person

"I build...", never "we deliver solutions." Write like the person, because the person is the product.

The reader runs a clinic, not a terminal

Lead with outcomes for non-technical decision-makers; the stack comes second.

Every claim is verifiable

Live links beat adjectives. No inflated counts — a number a visitor can't check is a number that costs trust.

Practice values carry into copy

Person-centered, non-pathologizing language. The Social Work section's values list is the tone reference.
